

Problem: How Do I Budget My Time In College?

Our game was designed around a common college problem:

How should I spend my time to maximize my grades and my own personal happiness?

College is a experience unlike any previous schooling. The idea of managing your time effectively can be a daunting task, as it's impossible to know exactly how your actions today will affect your life in the future.

If only there were a way...

As you can see in this graph, if Ian played CLASS and inputted his time choices, he would know that there is a correlation between the time he spends in his class and the impact it has on his grades. He would benefit from attending class more often.

Solution: Introducing the CLASS Simulator

Now, there IS a way!

Team The Other Guys has invented the revolutionary CLASS Simulator. With our game, you can find out the results your decisions today will have.

Our easy-to-use input page lets you enter the number of hours you plan to spend on going to class, participation, self-care, and a number of other important factors. Then, by simply pressing 'Enter', you're taken to the results page. There you can see how your decisions affected your wealth, grades, and happiness.

These values are calculated over the period of 15 weeks (the length of a semester) in order to present the user the outcomes of their decisions.

Game Features

Our easy-to-use game takes number values (the number of hours you'll study, for example) and uses them to compute the user's total happiness or grades on the results page.

How does it do this?

Team The Other Guys has utilized widely accepted equations relating to happiness, grades, and wealth and has made them the backbone to the Semester Game.

The Benefits

CLASS will revolutionize the concept of 'Planning Ahead'.

By exploring the values of study groups, for example, the user will be able to make an informed decision about budgeting time to attend a study group. If the benefit is minimal, the user might decide that studying alone has greater benefits and will allow them to manage their time the best they can.

Pick up a copy and watch your life change for the better!

THEOTHERGUYS

PRESS 'ENTER' TO CONTINUE

Start Menu

PLAY RESULTS

Hub Menu

HOURS WORKED

NUMBER OF CREDITS

Pre-Semester Input Screen